WEDNESDAY 16 NOVEMBER

Nurturing health system resilience through everyday leadership and reflective practice: experience from the DIAHLS and RESYST learning sites

Organised session: 11.00 - 12.30, Room 8

Benjamin Tsofa, Edwine Barasa, Soraya Ellokori, Salamina Hlahane, Timothy Malingi, Nonhlanhla Nxumalo, Vera Scott (@RESYSTresearch)

A critical health system challenge is to nurture resilience to everyday crisis and chronic stress. Drawing on experience from three African, long-term, action-learning collaborations, this session will share examples both of stressors and the everyday leadership strategies and reflective practices that can nurture resilience to them within a health system. The session is hosted by the RESYST (Resilient and Responsive Health Systems) research consortium.
